2.5 Risk Factors

Potential investors should be aware that subscribing for Shares in the Company involves a number of risks. The key risk factors of which investors should be aware are set out in Section 6 of this Prospectus. These risks together with other general risks applicable to all investments in listed securities not specifically referred to, may affect the value of the Shares in the future. Accordingly, an investment in the Company should be considered highly speculative. Investors should consider consulting their professional advisers before deciding whether to apply for Shares pursuant to this Prospectus.

Any failure to comply with these restrictions constitutes a violation of those laws. All of the Shares offered under this Prospectus will rank equally with Shares on issue at the date of this Prospectus.

3.2 Objective

The primary purpose of this Prospectus is to remove any trading restrictions that may have attached to Shares issued by the Company prior to the Closing Date.

- (c) the prospectus is for an offer of securities issued by the body that are in the same class of securities as the relevant securities.

This account will be established and kept by the Company in trust for each Applicant. Any interest earned on the application moneys will be for the benefit of the Company and will be retained by the Company irrespective of whether any Shares are issued and each Applicant waives the right to claim any interest.

The Directors will determine the recipients of all the Shares. The Directors reserve the right to reject any application or to allocate any Applicant fewer Shares than the number applied for.

Where the number of Shares issued is less than the number applied for, the surplus moneys will be returned by cheque as soon as practicable after the Closing Date. Where no issue of Shares is made, the amount tendered on application will be returned in full by cheque as soon as practicable after the Closing Date. Interest will not be paid on moneys refunded.

If ASX does not grant Official Quotation of the Shares offered pursuant to this Prospectus before the expiration of 3 months after the date of issue of the Prospectus, (or such period as varied by the ASIC), the Company will not issue any Shares and will repay all application monies for the Shares within the time prescribed under the Corporations Act, without interest.

The fact that ASX may grant Official Quotation to the Shares is not to be taken in any way as an indication of the merits of the Company or the Shares now offered for subscription.

3.7 Restrictions on the distribution of the Prospectus

The distribution of this Prospectus outside the Commonwealth of Australia may be restricted by law.

This Offer does not, and is not intended to, constitute an offer in any place or jurisdiction in which, or to any person to whom, it would not be lawful to make such an offer or to issue this Prospectus.

Residents of countries outside Australia should consult their professional advisers as to whether any government or other consents are required, or whether any formalities need to be observed should they wish to make an application to take up Shares on the basis of this Prospectus. The return of a duly completed Application Form will be taken to constitute a representation and warranty that there has been no breach of such laws and that all approvals and consents have been obtained.

5. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES ATTACHING TO SHARES

The Constitution is of the kind usually adopted by a public company, with certain provisions taking effect once (and for so long as) the Company is listed on the ASX. A summary of the rights attaching to Shares under the Constitution is set out below.

The summary is qualified by the full terms of the Constitution (copies of the Constitution may be inspected at the registered office of the Company during normal business hours by appointment with the Company secretary). These rights and liabilities can involve complex questions of law arising from an interaction of the Constitution with statutory, ASX Listing Rules and common law requirements. This summary is not intended to be exhaustive.

A summary of the rights which relate to the Shares which may be issued pursuant to this Prospectus are set out below. This summary does not purport to be exhaustive or constitute a definitive statement of the rights and liabilities of the Company's Shareholders.

5.1 Voting

At a general meeting of the Company on a show of hands, every member present in person, or by proxy, attorney or representative has one vote and upon a poll, every member present in person, or by proxy, attorney or representative has one vote for every Share held by them.

5.2 Dividends

The Shares will rank equally with all other issued Shares in the capital of the Company and will participate in dividends out of profits earned by the Company from time to time. Subject to the rights of holders of Shares of any special preferential or qualified rights attaching thereto, the profits of the Company are divisible amongst the holders of Shares in proportion to the Shares held by them irrespective of the amount paid up or credited as paid up thereon. The Directors may from time to time pay to Shareholders such interim dividends as in their judgement the position of the Company justifies.

5.3 Winding up

Upon paying the application moneys, Shareholders will have no further liability to make payments to the company in the event of the company being wound up pursuant to the provisions of the Corporations Act.

5.4 Transfer of securities

Generally, Shares in the Company will be freely transferable, subject to satisfying the usual requirements of security transfers on the ASX. The Directors may decline to register any transfer of Shares but only where permitted to do so under its Constitution or the ASX Listing Rules.

5.5 Sale of non-marketable holdings

- (a) The Company may take steps in respect of non-marketable holdings of Shares in the Company to effect an orderly sale of those Shares in the event that holders do not take steps to retain their holdings.
- (b) The Company may only take steps to eliminate non-marketable holdings in accordance with the Constitution and the ASX Listing Rules.

- (c) For more particular details of the rights attaching to Shares in the Company, investors should refer to the Constitution of the Company.

5.6 Variation of Rights

At present, the Company's only class of Shares is fully paid ordinary Shares. However, if at any time the share capital is divided into different classes of Shares, preference capital (other than redeemable preference capital) shall not be repaid, and the rights attached to any class of Shares (unless otherwise provided by the terms of issue of the Shares of that class) shall not at any time, be varied without:

- (a) the consent in writing of the holders of 75% of the issued Shares of that class; or
- (b) the sanction of a special resolution passed at a separate Meeting of the holders of the Shares of that class.

5.7 Alteration of Constitution

In accordance with the Corporations Act, the Constitution can only be amended by a special resolution passed by at least three quarters of Shareholders present and voting at the general meeting. In addition, at least 28 days written notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution must be given.

5.8 Interaction with ASX Listing Rules

Where the Company is listed, the Constitution provides that in the case of any inconsistency between any rule under the Constitution and a provision of the ASX Listing Rules, the ASX Listing Rules prevail to the extent of the inconsistency.

6. RISK FACTORS

6.1 Introduction

The Shares offered under this Prospectus are considered highly speculative. An investment in the Company is not risk free and the Directors strongly recommend potential investors consider the risk factors described below, together with information contained elsewhere in this Prospectus and to consult their professional advisers before deciding whether to apply for Shares pursuant to this Prospectus.

There are specific risks which relate directly to the Company's business. In addition, there are other general risks, many of which are largely beyond the control of the Company and the Directors. The risks identified in this Section, or other risk factors, may have a material impact on the financial performance of the Company and the market price of the Shares.

The following is not intended to be an exhaustive list of the risk factors to which the Company is exposed.

6.2 Specific Risks

In addition to the general market and economic risks noted in Section 6.3, investors should be aware of the risks specific to an investment in the Company. The major risks are described below.

(a) COVID-19 Pandemic

The occurrence of the COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in significant market uncertainty in global equity, currency, finance, trade and commodity markets. The effects of this pandemic are far-reaching and uncertain outcomes may impact the timing and viability of further investment in the Company and the Company's operations generally. Global financial markets have been severely impacted by this pandemic and such impacts may affect the ability of the Company to raise equity and debt.

To date, COVID-19 has not had any material impact on the Company's operations, however, any infections at the Company or to any of the Company's personnel could result in operations being suspended or otherwise disrupted for an unknown period of time which may have an adverse impact and adverse implications on future cash flows, profitability and financial condition.

The general level of economic uncertainty caused by the COVID-19 pandemic may also adversely impact the company's operations, financial position and prospectus.

The Company has implemented appropriate controls and will continue to review this response based on the latest guidance from health professionals and the government as the situation develops.

(b) Rate of Customer adoption

The Company is currently in the early stages of establishing its presence in the US and Australia, and its ability to profitably scale its business is heavily reliant on adoption and usage rates customer base to increase revenues from debit card interchange fees and achieve profitable operations.

Failure to expand in this way may materially and adversely impact the Company's ability to achieve economies of scale and to optimise its systems and may therefore adversely impact the Company's ability to achieve future profitability.

The Company's growth strategy also includes the introduction of new services and technologies, such as a wealth management program and cashback rewards. There is a risk that expansion initiatives may result in additional costs and risks or may not deliver the outcomes intended. This strategy depends on increasingly expanding its customer base.

Specifically, the Company's future revenue prospects are heavily contingent upon both:

- (i) consumer adoption rates; and
- (ii) the use of the Dough products by users.

The Company currently earns revenue predominantly from debit card interchange transaction fees and acquisition of brokered deposits sourced from partner banks. An increase in revenue generation requires greater use of Dough products by customers and for the Company to continue to increase the number of registered users.

The Company's success, growth and expansion could be impacted by a number of factors including but not limited to:

- (i) failure to increase adoption and usage of the Dough App and products;
- (ii) Dough's ability to meet users' demands for new products in a timely manner;
- (iii) cost-effectiveness and pricing of Dough's product offering;
- (iv) the availability of competing products in the market (including new market entrants);
- (v) software/product capabilities and performance;
- (vi) the ability to anticipate and quickly respond to changing technology, opportunities, regulatory requirements, industry standards or consumer requirements in the industry (i.e. first mover advantage); and
- (vii) the Dough's reputation.

The Company cannot guarantee that it will continue to increase its revenue from existing or new users.

There is also the risk that the marginal cost to acquire a new user may increase or be higher than anticipated.

If the Company fails in the execution of its marketing campaign and user adoption strategies, and consequently cannot attract additional users to the Douugh App, this may have an adverse impact upon the financial position of the Company.

(c) Loss of Customers

In addition to attracting new users through marketing and adoption strategies, the Company's revenue is dependent upon existing users and their continued use of the Douugh App. Part of the Company's expansion strategy is also dependent upon new users being attracted to the Company's products via existing foundational users. Accordingly, the Company must support its existing and future user base to ensure that they continue to support and use the Company's products, and support any future product offerings. If the Company fails to retain its existing users, this is likely to affect the Company's financial performance.

(d) Cost of direct marketing

The growth of new direct users of the Company's products depends in part on the effectiveness of the direct marketing efforts. There is a risk that the Company's direct advertising and direct marketing channels may become less effective or more expensive as a result of:

- (i) increased competition or costs associated with bidding for search engine key words;
- (ii) increased competition or cost for online and social media advertisements;
- (iii) changes to the algorithms or terms of services for search engines, such as Google, which may cause the Company to be ranked lower or excluded from search results; and
- (iv) reduced effectiveness of mass marketing.

Additionally, Douugh's user acquisition strategy is substantially based on the support provided by loyal brand advocates who may not be effective in referring new members or acquisition of new customers.

If the costs of direct advertising materially increase, these brand advocates are ineffective, or the effectiveness of the Company's direct marketing strategies decreases, the Company may be unable to continue to grow at the expected rate or profitably, which would have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition, operating and financial performance, and/or growth.

(e) Demand Risk

Douugh's business has the potential to grow rapidly. If that occurs and Douugh fails to properly manage that growth, then that failure could harm its business. Any failure to properly meet customer demand could adversely affect the Company, including demand for the Company's products and services, revenue collection, customer satisfaction and public perception.

(f) Contractual risks

The Company's operations and success are underpinned by various material agreements and the Company is reliant upon counterparties continuing to fulfil their obligations under these contracts. A failure by those parties to perform such obligations under these contracts, or the termination of these contracts, could adversely affect the Company. There can be no assurance that the Company would be successful in attempting to enforce any of its rights through legal action.

Key infrastructure required to facilitate the conduct of transactions via the Company's products is provided by third parties who deliver the requisite expertise and regulatory approvals to undertake the processing performed.

The Company's business is still at a relatively early stage and contractual partnerships are not as diversified as they might be for a more mature business. The loss of key partners may materially and adversely impact the Company's operations, revenue and profitability, and increase expenses to sign up new partners to replace those lost.

(g) Banking Performance

The Company's core proposition revolves around fostering financial wellness through a proprietary AI money assistant and delivering business model innovation via a SaaS offering, as opposed to offering traditional banking products.

The Company relies on its partnership arrangements to provide banking operations such as its debit card and bank accounts. Any failures or disruptions to these partners in the provision of their banking services may impact the financial performance of the Company.

(h) Protection of Intellectual Property

The Company's business depends in part on its ability to commercially exploit its technology and intellectual property, and it relies on laws relating to patents, trade secrets, copyright and trademarks to assist in protecting its proprietary rights. However, there is a risk that unauthorised use or copying of patents, software, data, specialised technology or platforms will occur.

The Company's competitors or other third parties may have intellectual property rights and interests which could potentially come into conflict with the Company's. A patent does not grant the holder of the patent the right to freely or commercially practice the patent. There may also be patents currently registered in Australia or any other jurisdiction (e.g. the United States of America) which would restrict the Company from operating with the invention as disclosed in the Company's patent applications. If any trademark or patent infringement or other intellectual property claims against the Company is successful, the Company may not have a legal right to continue to develop, produce, use or sell products that are adjudicated to have infringed third parties' intellectual property rights. The Company may be legally required to expend significant resources to redesign its products so that they do not infringe third parties' intellectual property rights, or it may be required to obtain relevant licenses to avoid further infringements. Intellectual property litigation against the Company could significantly disrupt its business, divert its management's attention, or consume much of its financial resources.

The Company cannot give any assurance that counterfeiting or imitation of its products will not occur in the future or, if it does occur, that it will be able to detect or address the problem effectively. Any occurrence of counterfeiting or imitation of its products or other breaches of intellectual property rights could negatively affect the Company's reputation and brand name, lead to loss of consumer confidence in its brands, and, as a consequence, adversely affect its operations. Any litigation to prosecute infringements upon the Company's rights and products is likely to be expensive and may divert the management's attention, as well as other resources, away from its business. If the intellectual property of the Company is compromised, this may have an adverse impact upon the financial position of the Company

(i) Improving Technology

The Company's business is predominantly based upon the success of its products. As with all new technology, there is the risk that the technology underlying it will be superseded by other rapidly developing technologies which have an advantage over the functionality and usability of the Company's products. If the Douogh App is superseded by other more efficient and customer friendly applications, this may have an adverse impact upon the financial position of the Company.

(j) New Technologies/Services

New products and services planned by the Company may be delayed in development, may not be capable of cost-effective commercialisation, or may not be supported or adopted by new or existing customers. Accordingly, products in development may not be released to the market, or released in time, and there is no guarantee that these new developments will be successful at driving increases in customers or revenue.

Furthermore, expenditure on research and development technologies is often uncertain or unproven and may yield no results or results different to what is expected. Investments in new technologies, products and processes may not yield the required return on those products for the Company to generate a return above cost.

(k) Competitor Risk

The fintech sector is highly competitive with many new entrants seeking to develop and commercialise their products. Though the market is still in early stages of development, there are already several key actors offering products and services in the same sector.

There also is a risk of new entrants in the market or that an existing organisation may disrupt the Company's business operations and market share. Existing competitors as well as new competitors may engage in aggressive customer acquisition campaigns, develop superior technology offerings or consolidate with other entities to deliver enhanced scale benefits. Such competitive pressures may materially erode the Company's market share and revenue, and may materially and adversely impact the Company's revenue and profitability.

If the Company is unable to compete effectively with new entrants into the market, or attract new customers or expand into new jurisdictions, its financial performance may be materially impacted and reduce the value of an investment in Shares. A general increase in competition may also require the Company to increase marketing expenditure or offer lower fees to its partners, which would decrease profitability even if the Company's market share does not decrease.

The emergence of mobile digital wallet products by established technology companies pose a risk to the Company's products, in circumstances where those products are bank and card agnostic, allowing customers to utilise different payment sources and methods, which may compete directly with the Company and redirect users away from the Company's product offering. The Company's products also compete with banking mobile applications to the extent that consumers use those applications to pay their bills and accordingly increased funding to the technology sector of the banks and any improved functionality and product offering to those applications may adversely affect the Company.

(l) Fraud Risk

Although the Company may not be directly exposed to risks imposed by fraudulent conduct, an increase in fraudulent activities on any of its products may result in a materially adverse impact to the Company's reputation, which would result in the Company bearing costs to rectify and safeguard its business operations, and to protect its products against further fraudulent activity.

(m) Disruption Risk

The Company depends on the constant real-time performance, reliability and availability of its technology platforms, communications systems, servers and the internet in order to provide its services. Many potential operational issues are outside the Company's control. There is a risk that these systems may be adversely affected by disruption, failure, service outages or corruption of the Company's IT network and information systems that may occur as a result of bugs, viruses and other destructive or disruptive software as well as natural disasters, power outages, terrorist attacks and similar events. Any disruption or failure of the Company's technology systems, including those provided by third party providers may adversely affect the Company's business and financial position.

There is a risk that repeated availability failures may result in a decline in customers. This may also materially and adversely impact the Company's financial performance, including a reduction in revenue from completed transactions and an increase in the costs associated with servicing customers through the disruption, as well as negatively impacting the Company's reputation.

In addition, the Company will depend on the ability of its partners and users to access the internet. Should access to the internet be disrupted or restricted, usage of the Company's products may be adversely impacted.

(n) Security and Data Breaches

Through the ordinary course of business, the Company collects a wide range of confidential information. Cyber-attacks may compromise or breach the technology platform used by the Company to protect confidential information.

There is a risk that the measures taken by the Company may not be sufficient to detect or prevent unauthorised access to, or disclosure of, such confidential information. Any data security breaches or the Company's failure to protect confidential information could result in the loss of information integrity, or breaches of the Company's obligations under applicable laws or agreements, each of which may materially adversely impact the Company's financial performance and reputation.

(o) General Change of Law and Regulation Risk

The Company's and its business are subject to a broad range of laws, regulations and industry compliance requirements.

There is a risk the Company may fail to comply in all material respects with all the laws, regulations and industry rules relating to the markets and industry in which it operates. If the Company does not meet regulatory requirements it may be exposed to fines or other penalties, it may be forced to pay compensation or it may even be suspended or have its authorisations cancelled, in which case it may not be able to continue to provide some or all of the services it currently provides. In such circumstances, the Company's financial position and business may be adversely impacted,

(p) Reputation risks

Maintaining the strength of the Company's reputation is important to retaining and increasing its end customer base, maintaining its relationships with its current customers and partners and other service providers and successfully implementing the Company's business strategy. There is a risk that unforeseen issues or events may adversely impact the Company's reputation. This may adversely impact the future growth and profitability of the Company. The Company's reputation is also closely linked to the timely and accurate provision of services to users. There is a risk that the Company's actions and the actions of the Company's suppliers may adversely impact the Company's reputation. Any factors that diminish the Company's reputation could result in customers, customers or other parties ceasing to do business with the Company, impede its ability to successfully operate its product, negatively affect its future business strategy and materially and adversely impact the Company's financial position and performance.

(q) Domain name risks

the Company's business depends to some extent on customers being attracted to its various products including the Company's website. The Company has registered its domain name, www.dough.com. However, should the Company not renew or otherwise lose control of its domain name, it would lose all traffic directed to the Company Website and its various web applications, which would adversely affect the Company's revenue.

(r) Operational risk

The Company will be exposed to operational risks present in the current business including risks arising from system failure, failure of security and physical protection systems, customer services, staff skills and performance, and product development and maintenance. Operational risk has the potential to have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial performance and position as well as reputation. The Company will endeavour to take appropriate action or obtain appropriate insurance to mitigate these risks, however, certain residual risk will remain with the Company.

(s) Insurance arrangements

The Company intends to ensure that insurance is maintained within ranges of coverage that the Company believes to be consistent with industry practice and having regard to the nature of activities being conducted. No assurance, however, can be given that the Company will be able to obtain such insurance coverage at reasonable rates or that any coverage it arranges will be adequate and available to cover any such claims.

(t) Government policy and regulatory risk

Changes in relevant taxation, interest rates, other legal, legislative and administrative regimes, and Government policies in Australia or the US, may have an adverse effect on the assets, operations and ultimately the financial performance of the Company. These factors may ultimately affect the financial performance of the Company and the market price of its securities.

The Company may be exposed to the evolving regulations governing banks and the financial services sector. In addition, the Company will have to navigate any differences in regulatory regimes that will occur from operating in multiple jurisdictions.

In addition to the normal level of income tax imposed on all industries, the Company may be required to pay government royalties, indirect taxes, GST and other imposts which generally relate to revenue or cash flows. Industry profitability can be affected by changes in government taxation policies.

(u) The Company may be subject to additional legal or regulatory requirements in the future

The legal and regulatory regime applicable to the Company, and the industry rules under which the Company operates, is subject to change.

Changes in laws, regulations, government policy and industry rules may positively or negatively affect the Company and the attractiveness of an investment in the Company. The Company cannot predict what changes to laws, regulations and industry rules may be made in the future or the impact that these changes may have on its business. In addition, if the amount and/or complexity of new laws, regulations and industry rules increase, the cost of compliance and the risk of non-compliance to the Company may also increase. This may have an adverse impact on the financial performance and prospects of the Company.

In addition, there is potential that the Company may become subject to additional legal or regulatory requirements if its business, operations, strategy or geographic reach expand in the future. This may potentially include financial services licensing, or other licencing or regulatory requirements or similar limitations of the conduct of its business.

(v) Reliance on Key Personnel

The emergence and development of the Company's business has been largely due to the talent, effort, experience and leadership of its board of directors, key employees and Management personnel, especially Mr Andy Taylor. The Company is substantially dependent on the continued service of experienced managerial and highly qualified technical staff to develop and operate its technology and to direct operational staff to manage the operational, sales, compliance and other functions of its business.

There is no assurance that the Company will be able to retain the services of such persons or that there will be no detrimental impact on the performance of the Company or its growth potential if one or more of the key management personnel cease their engagement with the Company and suitable replacements are not identified or engaged in a timely manner.

There is also a risk that the Company may not be able to recruit suitably qualified and talented staff in a timeframe that meets the Company's growth objectives. This may result in delays in the integration of new systems, development of technology and general business expansion, which may adversely impact the Company's revenue and profitability.

(w) Hiring Risk

The labour market in the technology sector is competitive. The Company's ability to attract and retain the best talent to help the Company grow will be a determinative factor in its success. Accordingly, any loss of talent may adversely impact the Company's revenue and profitability.

(x) Limited Trading History

Although the Company believes that its proposed operations and business model will be successful, the Company is a start-up company with limited trading history and any number of factors could adversely affect the operations and business model of the Company.

Given the Company's limited trading history, there is no guarantee that the proposed marketing and customer adoption strategies of the Company will be successful to achieve a sizeable adoption rate by Customers of its products and/or market share.

(y) Privacy and Protection Risk

One area of particular concern is that of data privacy and protection. The Company's products may be impacted by informational privacy laws. Such laws differ from jurisdiction to jurisdiction.

In Australia, the collection, use, storage and disclosure of "personal information" is principally regulated by the Privacy Act. The Privacy Act does not prohibit the Company from operating its products; but it could in certain circumstances impose additional compliance obligations on the Company. The compliance obligations under the Privacy Act only extend to "personal information".

In the event the Company collects personal information, the Company will be required to comply with the compliance regime under the Privacy Act will apply to the Company in respect of the collection, use, storage and disclosure of that "personal information". Any failure of the Company to comply with the requirements of personal information storage and collection of personal information, or associated data breach in the security of such personal information, may negatively impact the Company.

(z) Hacker risk; Technology / disruption / corruption / systems failure

Security concerns and the possibility of data corruption and data manipulation are particular concerns with the ongoing confidence in applications in general and the adoption of short-range wireless technology. Where consumers perceive that the Company's product may be insecure and open to being hacked, then its utilisation may be impacted. This may ultimately impact on the success of the Company.

Similarly, the threat of the hacking of communications over the internet between devices may similarly impact uptake of the Company's product.

The perception of risk associated with the theft of devices on which consumers are running the Company's product may also have a significant impact on the uptake of the Company's product.

Whilst the Company has sought to incorporate security aspects in its products, no assurance can be given that they are immune from the usual range of application issues.

To mitigate any risks associated with security, the Company will be integrating changes continuously to keep its products secure.

(aa) Execution Risk

Notwithstanding the number of existing partnerships held by the Company, there may be a risk in the future that the Company is unable to find local banks to partner with in new jurisdictions, or they will need to agree on onerous contractual terms, or that an established banking relationship may be lost. This may adversely impact the Company's revenue and profitability.

6.3 General Risks

(a) Investment risk

There are a number of risks associated with any stock market investment. The market price of Shares can be expected to rise and fall in accordance with general market conditions and factors and there can be no certainty that, following listing, an active market for the Shares will develop.

The value of the Shares will be determined by the stock market and will be subject to a range of factors beyond the control of the Company or its Directors. These factors include movements in local and international stock exchanges, local interest rates and exchange rates, domestic and international economic and political conditions, government taxation, market supply, competition and demand and other legal, regulatory or policy changes.

The trading price after listing may also be affected by the financial and operating performance of the Company.

(b) Share Market Risk

The market price of Shares and other securities can be expected to rise and fall in accordance with general market conditions and factors specifically affecting Australian technology companies and technology companies with operations in the US.

There are a number of factors (both national and international) that may affect the share market price and neither the Company nor its Directors have control of these factors.

(c) Management actions

Directors of the Company will, to the best of their knowledge, experience and ability endeavour to anticipate, identify and manage the risks inherent in the activities of the Company, but without assuming any personal liability for the same, with the aim of eliminating, avoiding and mitigating the impact of risks on the performance of the Company and its security.

(d) Taxation

The acquisition and disposal of Shares will have tax consequences, which will differ depending on the individual financial affairs of each investor. All potential investors in the Company are urged to obtain independent financial advice about the consequences of acquiring Shares from a taxation point of view and generally.

To the maximum extent permitted by law, the Company, its officers and each of their respective advisers accept no liability and responsibility with respect to the taxation consequences of applying for Shares under this Prospectus.

(e) Force majeure events

Acts of terrorism, an outbreak of international hostilities or fires, floods, earthquakes, labour strikes, pandemics, civil wars and other natural disasters may cause an adverse change in investor sentiment with respect to the Company specifically or the stock market more generally, which could have a negative impact on the value of an investment in the Shares.

(f) Speculative nature of investment

The above list of risk factors ought not to be taken as an exhaustive list of the risks faced by the Company or by investors in the Company. The above factors, and others not specifically referred to above, may materially affect the financial performance of the Company and the value of the Shares offered under the Offer. The Shares issued under the Offer carry no guarantee in respect of profitability, dividends, return of capital or the price at which they may trade on the ASX. Potential investors should therefore consider an investment in the Company as speculative and should consult their professional advisers before deciding whether to apply for New Shares under the Offers.

(g) Exposure to adverse macroeconomic conditions

The Company's business depends on users transacting through its products, which in turn is affected by such macroeconomic conditions as unemployment, interest rates, customer confidence, economic recessions, downturns or extended periods of uncertainty or volatility. This may impact the Company's ability to generate revenue.

6.4 Speculative investment

The above list of risk factors ought not to be taken as exhaustive of the risks faced by the Company or by investors in the Company. The above factors, and others not specifically referred to above, may in the future materially affect the financial performance of the Company and the value of the Shares offered under this Prospectus

Therefore, the Shares to be issued pursuant to this Prospectus carry no guarantee with respect to the payment of dividends, returns of capital or the market value of those Shares.

Potential investors should consider that the investment in the Company is speculative and should consult their professional advisers before deciding whether to apply for Shares pursuant to this Prospectus.

In general terms a “transaction specific prospectus” is only required to contain information in relation to the effect of the issue of securities on the Company and the rights attaching to the securities. Having taken such precautions and having made such enquires as are reasonable, the Company believes that it has complied with the general and specific requirements of ASX as applicable from time to time throughout the 3 months before the issue of this Prospectus which required the Company to notify ASX of information about specified events or matters as they arise for the purpose of ASX making that information available to the stock market conducted by ASX.

Information that is already in the public domain has not been reported in this Prospectus other than that which is considered necessary to make this Prospectus complete.
