PORTFOLIO REVIEW

November saw a shift in risk appetite from investors as concerns arose about inflation and valuations. Globally, there was a shift away from high-multiple tech companies and riskier assets which resulted in a sell-off in both tech companies and smaller companies across markets. This impacted our portfolio, as some of our position saw selling affected by these factors. The Small Ordinaries fell -0.31% for the month. GC1 returned -1.85% for the month, underperforming against the market by -1.54%. Part of this was to be expected after the strong month we had in October.

PORTFOLIO COMPANY UPDATES

Our top 3 largest contributors to performance during this month were Uniti (UWL), Praemium (PPS) and Healthia (HLA), while Family Zone (FZO), Eagle Mountain Mining (EM2) and Revolver Resources (RRR) were the largest detractors from portfolio performance.

Uniti

Uniti provided an operational update mid-month after starting the buyback of shares, such is the confidence that management have in the business to be able to fund the buyback, and at the same time, fund growth in the business. We view this a sign of aligned management who believe that the company is currently cheap.

Praemium

Praemium had an unsolicited offer from Netwealth early in the month which saw the share price rise sharply. Some of this has been given back following the announcement. The board have announced the implied price undervalues the company.

Healthia

HLA announced several small acquisitions during the month as well as providing the market with an update at their AGM. We are still confident that HLA will be a major player in the allied health space in the next few years.

For personal use only

Family Zone

Family Zone suffered from a risk appetite for tech stocks globally along with a continued overhang from institutions selling post the capital raise. We believe that this is coming to an end. Operationally, the company is performing well.

Eagle Mountain Mining

A lack of news contributed to the price deterioration in EM2. As with all small resource companies, we expect there to be further volatility driven by news flow.

Revolver Resources

Revolver's somewhat volatile share price is the result of incremental buyers and sellers moving the share price. Since the end of the month, the company suspended their shares from trading, after releasing further excellent drilling results further confirming the high-grade body at the Dianne site.
