

Dough partners with OMG (Openmarkets Group) to launch ASX share trading

- Dough signs a new partnership with trading infrastructure and wealth management FinTech, OMG (Openmarkets Group) to offer ASX share trading to Australian customers.
- The partnership will enable Dough to offer a full suite of integrated trading services across NYSE, Nasdaq, ASX and Crypto, when it launches its financial super app in AU in 2022, replacing the current 'Goodments by Dough' app.

Sydney|New York, 21 December 2021 -- Dough Ltd (ASX: DOU), the financial super helping customers autonomously manage and grow their money to live financially healthier lives, is pleased to announce a partnership with OMG (Openmarkets Group) to offer ASX share trading to its Australian customers.

Commenting on the Company's partnership announcement, Dough's Founder and CEO Andy Taylor said:

"We are delighted to announce our partnership with OMG, which allows us to introduce ASX share trading functionality alongside US stock and crypto trading, integrated into our financial super app, when we will launch in Australia next year."

This is the start of a long-term partnership that will eventually support share trading for Dough's global customer base across multiple international markets."

Dough will use OMG's market-leading APIs, which have recently been strengthened through the acquisition of Cannon Trading. Accessing a single integrated tech stack with flexible APIs and OMG's high level of support through the process provides Dough not only the speed to market, but peace of mind regarding technology.

Under the agreement, OMG will provide execution, clearing and settlement services to Dough customers in Australia in relation to single stock ASX trading, which will be integrated into Dough's 'Stocks Jar' feature. OMG will charge Dough wholesale fees for the trading of ASX equities, ETFs, warrants and options. Dough will look to charge customers a per trade fee. The agreement has a minimum term of three (3) years with a notice period of six (6) months.

Although the financial impact of the ASX trading functionality within the Dough app and the linked OMG agreement is not yet determinable, it is deemed material due to the activation of this core functionality, which will help to attract new customers and further engage existing ones. This also introduces yet another new revenue stream.

As per previous guidance, the Company anticipates launching the Dough offering in Australia in mid-2022.
