

MARCH 2022 QUARTERLY ACTIVITY REPORT AND APPENDIX 4C – MEMPHASYS LIMITED (ASX: MEM)

Memphasys Limited ('Memphasys' or the 'Company') is pleased to provide its Appendix 4C cash flow statement for the quarter ended 31 March 2022 ('Q3'), along with the following update.

Business activities in the March Quarter (Q3)

Memphasys is focused on reproductive biotechnology and proprietary cell separation technologies. It is developing novel medical devices, diagnostics, and media with application to assisted reproduction technologies in humans and animals.

The Company is commercialising the Felix™ device, which separates high quality sperm for IVF processes. In addition, it has several research and development (R&D) projects being undertaken at the University of Newcastle, Australia.

There was no change in the activities of the Company during Q3.

The second instalment of the cash reimbursement from Hydrix Ltd, amounting to $125,000, was received in the March quarter.

The Company spent 72% less than the prior quarter on R&D projects mainly due to instalments relating to research agreements with the University of Newcastle not being payable in Q3. Staff and consultant costs slightly increased by 9% from the prior quarter mainly due to a cash bonus of $5,000 paid in January to each of its five consultants for outperformance of their work for the Company.

Administration and Corporate costs increased by 4% over the prior quarter. These costs include payment of non-executive director fees for a total of $37,500. Staff costs include salaries of $87,500 and a cash bonus of $5,000 paid to the Executive Chairman.

Material Developments

During Q3 Memphasys continued making material progress on many aspects of the business, which were presented by the Executive Chairman at the Pitt Street Research conference on 3 March 2022 (presentation released to the market on the same day). A significant milestone for the Company was commencement of clinical trials for the Felix™ device, which is anticipated to finish within calendar year 2022.

On 14 March 2022, the Company announced that received the initial ISO 13485 ISO certification, international accreditation for its Quality Management System to provide medical devices and related services to meet customer and applicable regulatory requirements.

On 22 March 2022, Memphasys announced the Samson stallion fertility diagnostic device accurately predicted pregnancy in mares in field trials. The Company is to develop and integrate a production prototype of the Samson device for field testing in the 2022 Australian breeding season.

On 30 March 2022, Memphasys announced that it completed follow-up sales of a batch of cartridges for commercial purposes to the Coimbatore Womens Hospital Centre in India, and a Felix™ System (device and cartridges) for research purposes to Diagens Biotechnology Company Ltd (Diagens) in China. The Company also reported that it is closely working with Diagens on the application for a fast track “Green Channel” regulatory path for Felix™ to be sold in the Chinese market. Although the quantum of these sales is not material, this repeat clinical order validates Memphasys business model of recurring cartridge sales and is a significant milestone reached by the Company.

This announcement was approved by the Board of Memphasys.
