Sydney, Australia, 29 April 2022: Global lifelong learning platform OpenLearning Limited ('OpenLearning' or 'the Company') (ASX: OLL) is pleased to provide its Appendix 4C cash flow statement for the quarter ended 31 March 2022 (Q1 FY22), along with the following financial and operational update.

OpenLearning Platform continues to penetrate Australian life-long learning market

The OpenLearning platform has continued to gain traction as more education providers used it as an end-to-end solution for delivering short courses and micro-credentials. As a next generation lifelong learning platform, OpenLearning offers its clients a complete solution, including

- Easy to use course setup tools
- Digital credentialing and portfolios
- A robust assessment system
- 'Know Your Learner' functionality to identify academic misconduct
- Integrated marketing tools and payment gateway
- A scalable, modern cloud application

¹ Annualised recurring SaaS revenue, calculated by utilising the generally accepted industry standard, which involves multiplying the monthly accrued SaaS revenue in the month at the end of the quarter by 12 (months). The ARR calculation does not take into account the future expiry of the term of any contract under which SaaS revenue is generated or any customer lost during the relevant month.

The technology and services provided OpenLearning are succinctly detailed as following:

YoY increase for Platform Revenues over Q1 FY22

OpenLearning’s Platform Revenue includes two segments: 1) Platform Subscription and 2) Program Delivery. Platform Revenue increased to $0.652 million in Q1 FY22, 58% up YoY.

While Platform Revenue was lower than the prior quarter, this was reflective of two temporary factors:

- A deliberate move by the Company to streamline its platform SaaS pricing model, which effectively delayed the timing of subscription revenues from education providers utilising the OpenLearning platform. This revenue is expected to grow in coming quarters, as a new usage-based pricing regime becomes the norm.
- An inherent ‘lumpiness’ in Program Delivery revenue. As the Company previously indicated to the market, intakes and the recognition of revenue over the duration of the TPO and CS101 programs will result in some volatility in the Company’s quarterly Platform Revenue.

For personal use only

OpenLearning's Platform Subscription includes recurring Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) revenue from education providers that pay to access and utilise the OpenLearning platform, including the BEST Network. Platform SaaS annual recurring revenue (ARR)² reached $1.501 million (up 5% YoY).

As noted above, OpenLearning has recently moved to simplify its Platform SaaS pricing by removing lower-cost fixed price plans and requiring education providers to sign up to new usage-based plans. The inner workings of this initiative are explained more fully later in this announcement. In the midst of these changes, platform SaaS customers rose to 257 by end Q1 FY22, up 45% YoY.

At the same time, total enrolments grew 0.167 million to 5.287 million, while total unique users increased by 0.085 million to 3.205 million.

OpenLearning successfully implements simplified platform SaaS pricing model

Product pricing in the Company's platform subscription has recently undergone a material change. A streamlined platform SaaS pricing model has gradually been introduced to the client base.

Previously, OpenLearning had over 300 educators subscribed to legacy SaaS plans at c.$200/year. In Q1 FY22, the Company discontinued these legacy SaaS plans and required all education providers wanting to continue using the platform to subscribe 'institution SaaS plans' with a starting price of c.$1,250/year for up to 100 learners with usage-based pricing thereafter.

To date, while overall SaaS revenue has registered only a modest increase, customer numbers have substantially risen as a result of the change in the pricing model. This reflects the switch now occurring between the old and new pricing models.

The key tenets of this revamped B2B SaaS model are:

- Tiered subscription plans for education providers to utilise the OpenLearning platform
- A fees schedule determined by usage by learners and educators and the features available to them
- Geo-targeted pricing for specific currencies

² Annualised recurring SaaS revenue, calculated by utilising the generally accepted industry standard, which involves multiplying the monthly accrued SaaS revenue in the month at the end of the quarter by 12 (months). The ARR calculation does not take into account the future expiry of the term of any contract under which SaaS revenue is generated or any customer lost during the relevant month.

For personal use only

- From a self-service and inside sales perspective, education providers now subscribe online with their credit card and get a 30-day free trial with access to all the tools to set up and run their courses
- Support is provided by online tutorials, knowledge - base, community and support team
- Specifically for university clients, Enterprise SaaS plans designed to meet the needs of universities are handled through OpenLearning's partnerships team.

This pricing strategy has resulted in only the education providers who see substantial value in the platform moving into the usage-based SaaS plans. It has delivered a simpler sales process, resulting in improved sales efficiency that is already supporting product-led growth.

OpenLearning continues to build scale in Program Delivery model

The UNSW Transition Program Online (TPO), a four-month direct entry program for prospective international students delivered in partnership with UNSW Global, is now recognised by eight universities across Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom. This list is expected to swell with a number of other universities now considering to recognise the program this year.

OpenLearning is now working closely with UNSW Global to open the way for universities that recognise the program to participate in marketing efforts. Their inclusion should, in turn, increase the demand for the TPO program. As shown in the following map of the world, TPO is now gaining traction across Asia, the US, the Middle East and parts of Africa.

Attracting international students across the globe

Two intakes of TPO commenced in Q1 FY22, with three more due to commence throughout the year. The timing of these intakes and the recognition of revenue over the duration of the program will result in seasonal variations in the Company's Platform Revenue.

The Company is also building up scale with CS101 by entering the corporate upskilling market and piloting the licensing model with higher education institutions.

Cash receipts continue to record YoY increases

OpenLearning reported an 2% YoY increase in cash receipts from customers to $1.359 million in Q1 FY22. More specifically, cash receipts by segment over the quarter were:

- Platform SaaS - $0.570 million
- Program Delivery - $0.434 million
- Marketplace - $0.229 million
- Services - $0.125 million

Net operating cash outflows were ($1.448) million in Q1 FY22. The Company now focuses on improving its gross margins by adopting usage-based pricing, ending support for legacy SaaS plans and improving its utilisation of cloud hosting services. The Company is in the process of implementing a number of measures aligned with its strategy to improve operating efficiency and reduce costs while balancing investments to grow revenue.

OpenLearning's cash on hand as at 31 March 2022 was $4.515 million, bolstered by the $1.583 million of new capital received from the recent rights issue to eligible existing OpenLearning shareholders.

OpenLearning Group CEO & Managing Director Adam Brimo said: "We continued to successfully leverage off ongoing growth in the life-long learning market over the early part of calendar 2022. The list of education providers turning to our end-to-end platform to deliver their short courses grew further in the March 2022 quarter. And this growth impetus should remain in place over the coming year, as the long-term demand uplift for short courses and micro-credentials shows no signs of abating.

The March quarter was a watershed period for the Platform Subscription segment of our Company. It saw us phase out the remaining legacy SaaS plans and simplify our pricing model. The revenue is now determined by usage levels of both learners and educators and the features available to them. This new pricing structure will contribute to gross margin improvement down the track.

In the Program Delivery space, the number of universities now recognising the UNSW Global's TPO has risen to eight, and this number should grow further. We are now working closely with UNSW Global to open the way for universities that recognise the TPO program to participate in its marketing initiatives, which should feed more demand for the program amongst a wider group of prospective students."

Ends.
