The partnership also gained strong traction with North American news outlets and was featured in multiple publications including the New York Post³, Yahoo⁴, MSN⁵ and Today's Parent⁶ amongst others.

As an investor and collaborator, Ms Mitchell will continue to broaden brand awareness and consulting on the Company's social media strategy, utilising her own channels while attending two in-person events in 2022.

Commentary:

Hydralyte partner Ms Mitchell commented: "Between meetings, working out and chasing a toddler, I don't drink as much water as I should. I invested in Hydralyte because it delivers superior rapid rehydration, tastes great and is low in sugar so my family gets the hydration they need. It's a daily life-hack."

Hydralyte North America CEO Oliver Baker said: "Shay's has a deep connection with her followers where they trust the products she recommends, what she has done with her luggage company, BEIS is extraordinary. As one of the most high profile pregnant women on the planet, she connects directly with our core target market of young families with kids. Her first of many posts begins the intimate story-telling with her audience that allows an authentic introduction of our products benefits, ahead of a more consolidated marketing campaign planned for Q3."

"We have timed the launch with Shay to ensure that Hydralyte continues to build strong brand awareness coming into the North American summer period. Traditionally, this period is very high volume and we anticipate increased revenue and cash collection over the coming months."
