Powdered Infant Formula Recall: What to Know

Do not use recalled Similac, Alimentum and EleCare powdered infant formulas produced in Sturgis, Michigan.

Facebook Twitter LinkedIn Email Print

For ongoing updates on the powdered infant formula recall and investigation, please see FDA Investigation of Clostridium Infections, Powdered Infant Formula.

If you use powdered infant formula, be aware certain Similac, Alimentum and EleCare products have been recalled and should not be used.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is investigating consumer complaints of bacterial infections in four infants who consumed powdered infant formula produced in Abbott Nutrition's facility in Sturgis, Michigan. All four infants had to be hospitalized and the bacterial infection may have contributed to death in two patients.

The FDA has published a list of recalled brands. Recalled products should no longer be available for sale at the bottom of the page.

The FDA also is receiving media inquiries about the recall. Because infant formula is a sensitive topic, the FDA understands the importance of providing accurate information.

EU project targets safe food for infants

By Joe Whitworth on January 4, 2021

An EU-funded project aiming to boost food safety for infants in the European Union and China has begun.

The Safe Food for Infants in the EU and China (SAFFI) project is planned to run until the end of August 2024 and involves academia, food safety authorities, infant food companies, and technology and data-science SMEs. EU funding in the Horizon 2020 project is almost €4 million ($4.9 million) with an overall budget of €6.75 million ($8.2 million).

BUBS RESPONSE: EDUCATION & SUPPORT WITH ACCESS TO BUBS FORMULA FROM AUSTRALIAN RETAILERS

Are you a concerned parent?

The Aussie Bubs™ Advisory Board created these tips to help concerned parents find some peace of mind.

DO switch brands if your routine formula isn't available. It can take a baby a few days to transition to the new formula so be patient. If your baby is on a specialty formula, or has an allergy or sensitivity to any formula, always talk to your pediatrician before switching.

DO call smaller mom & pop stores as they often have stock that the larger retailers may not.

DO introduce toddler formula if your baby is close to a year old, eating solid foods and you've consulted with your pediatrician. Look for formulas that are Clean Label Purity Award recipients.

DO NOT make homemade infant formula. It won't meet your baby's essential nutritional needs, can be very dangerous to their growth and development and can even make your baby sick.

DO NOT add extra water to stretch your formula supply. This will dilute essential nutrients which can lead to major health problems and harm the normal growth and development of the infant.
