QANTM EXPANDS IN ASIA-PACIFIC AS DCC OPENS HONG KONG OFFICE

QANTM is excited to announce that its subsidiary company Davies Collison Cave (DCC) is opening an office in Hong Kong SAR, with Owen Gee joining the DCC team as Managing Principal – DCC Hong Kong.

Owen has over 18 years of experience as an IP practitioner, including 14 years with leading IP firms in Hong Kong. Owen is a registered patent attorney in both Australia and New Zealand. He is also a registered Trade Marks Attorney in Australia. Owen's skills as a patent attorney are underpinned by degrees in Mechanical Engineering (Hons) and Computer Science, both from the University of Sydney.

QANTM's CEO, Craig Dower, said:

"This new business in Hong Kong is aligned with QANTM's growth strategy in the Asia-Pacific region. DCC has a long history of assisting clients to protect their rights in Hong Kong through its trusted associates. Now with its own Hong Kong office, DCC gives its clients direct access to this important market and has an opportunity to service Hong Kong businesses directly.

Other QANTM Group businesses will also be able to refer clients to DCC Hong Kong."

DCC's Group Managing Principal, Michael Wolnizer, said:

"Opening an office in Hong Kong expands DCC's footprint in the Asia-Pacific region. It allows us to assist our local and overseas clients in this important and growing market, and this expansion fits in well with our strategy to be able to offer our clients broad experience and on-the-ground expertise across Asia-Pacific.

Having grown up in Hong Kong, I have a special affinity with the region, and I am excited to be sharing this news."
