Since the announcement of the heads of agreement in February, the parties have been working together in good faith integrating the two businesses and connecting, cross-promoting subscription services and building brand awareness and audience for Vinyl.com. The Vampr app, with 2 million monthly swipes and 125K monthly active users, has recently initiated advertising driving audience to vinyl.com and Jaxsta Creator subscriptions.

In the last 4 weeks, 6 additional businesses have purchased Jaxsta subscriptions and Vampr's Head of Advertising, who is US based, is already working with the Jaxsta team on Business Development leads and outreach which will further accelerate growth.

A comprehensive integration plan to combine the Vampr and Jaxsta technologies has been completed identifying substantial cost savings when the Vampr and Jaxsta platforms become an integrated Creator offering.

An average creator spends more than US$600 a year on music creation, promotion, distribution, and commercial tools. In total, the music creator tools market was worth approximately US$4.1 billion in 2022¹. Combining Vampr and Jaxsta's Creator offering will provide a compelling solution for the growing music Creator marketplace and we are confident this part of our business will see strong growth over the next year.

VINYL.COM

The Vinyl.com MVP went live on March 6 with a "Record of the Day" campaign. Sales have been achieved every day from launch with 194 total sales at $6.2K revenue. Since launch the MVP has extended from North America to include Australia with additional payment types added. The v1.0 of the platform will include deep catalogue, editorial and enable creative campaigns will launch later this month.

Jaxsta continues to grow its revenues quarter on quarter while also further reducing costs.

Beth Appleton, Jaxsta's CEO stated, "The acquisition of Vampr has accelerated our ability to deliver a connected solution for Creators and Music Fans. As we launch the first version of the vinyl.com store and consolidate our market offering, we will see the company continue its positive and rapid transformation. I am genuinely excited about the company's future, as well as our ability to execute to plan and our path to profitability. We anticipate continued revenue growth, our cost management will remain tight, and our momentum in product development will continue to increase as we integrate our teams and systems."

Josh Simons, Founder and CEO of Vampr, added, "The two companies are already working together as one. We wanted to hit the ground running and ensure we capitalise on the momentum Vampr already has in the marketplace so that the Vampr, Jaxsta and Vinyl flywheel is already turning on completion of the transaction."
