Risks

This section discusses some of the key risks associated with any investment in Hydralyte North America together with risks relating to participation in the Placement and Entitlement Offer which may affect the future operating and financial performance of Hydralyte North America and the value of Hydralyte North America shares. The risks set out below do not constitute an exhaustive list of all risks involved with an investment in Hydralyte North America. Hydralyte North America seeks to reduce risk to its business through appropriate risk mitigants, however, if any of the following risks materialise, business, financial condition and operating results are likely to be adversely impacted. Before investing in Hydralyte North America, you should carefully consider whether this investment is suitable for you. Potential investors should consider publicly available information on Hydralyte North America (such as that available on the ASX website), and consider consulting a stockbroker, legal advisor, accountant or other professional advisors before making an investment decision.

Risk	Description
Option risk	The Offer involves the offer of attaching Options to Entitlement Offer participants and the conditional offer of attaching Options to Placement participants. The offer of Options to Placement participants will be put to shareholders at a General Meeting to be held in September 2023. There is no certainty that HPC shareholders will approve the issue of Options to Placement participants. If the issue of Options to Placement participants is not approved by HPC shareholders then those investors will not receive attaching Options in connection with the Shares issued to them under the Placement. In addition, there is no certainty that HPC shares will trade above the Option exercise price and accordingly there is no certainty that Option holders will realise any value from the Options. In the event that Options are exercised, this will dilute the holdings of existing shareholders.
Hydralyte is a small player in a competitive industry	Hydralyte North America operates in a highly competitive geographic and product market, particularly with regards to prices, shelf space and store placement, brand recognition and new product introductions. The Company currently has a small share of the Healthy Hydration Solutions Market in North America and will need to boost its brand and product recognition in what is a highly competitive industry in order to grow its market share and meet its future growth objectives. Should any of Hydralyte North America's current or future competitors participate more aggressively on price, product, innovation or other means, or if Hydralyte North America is unable to attain its targeted level of brand and product recognition, this is likely to have a material adverse impact on the Company's future financial performance and prospects.
Reliance on third party supply chain and risk of increased costs	Hydralyte North America relies on its supply chains to manufacture and distribute its product, and may experience disruptions and/or cost increases as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The availability and price of the raw ingredients and packaging used in Hydralyte North America's products are influenced by global demand and supply factors outside of Hydralyte North America's control, such as the manufacturers' relationships with their suppliers, labour shortages or events such as natural disasters, power outages, disruptions to shipping routes or wars (such as the ongoing war in Ukraine). Hydralyte North America's relationships with its existing suppliers are not exclusive, and its suppliers also have relationships with third parties (including Hydralyte North America's competitors), which could affect the availability and terms on which products are sourced. Labour shortages or increased labour costs arising from increased competition for employees, high employee turnover rates, unionisation of workers or increases in minimum wage and other employee benefit costs could have a material adverse effect on Hydralyte North America's business, financial condition and results of operations. There is no guarantee that the Company will be able to pass on increased costs associated with the above factors to its customers (particularly if any costs increases are material). Hydralyte North America may be required to increase the prices of its products to pass on cost increases, which may affect the affordability of the Company's products and reduce sales. Furthermore, the ability and speed with which Hydralyte North America can respond to cost increases by adjusting the prices charged to its customers or sourcing more competitively priced materials may be limited and may result in lower margins on the sale of its products.
IP risks	Hydralyte North America regards its brands, trademarks, domain names, trade secrets, propriety information and similar intellectual property (IP) as important to its success. Due to the nature of the Company's products, the breakdown of active ingredients and product recipes remains broadly consistent across all competitor products and is generally clearly signposted on a product's packaging. In addition, Hydralyte North America's product formulation is built on the WHO formulation for optimal absorption, which is publicly known information. Accordingly, there is limited scope for Healthy Hydration Solutions products, and Hydralyte's products in particular, to obtain IP protection for product formulations. There is a risk that a competitor may release a similar or identical product to a Hydralyte North America product, against which the Company may have little or no recourse. Further, if a manufacturer ceases supplying products or services to Hydralyte North America, the Company may be unable to establish a replacement manufacturer who is capable of producing an identical product.. The Company's IP is at risk of unauthorised use or disclosure. While the Company holds registered trade marks for the Hydralyte brand in various jurisdictions, much of its other IP is not protected (or capable of being protected) through other forms of registered intellectual property rights (such as patent or design registrations). To enforce its IP rights, the Company may therefore have to commence expensive and time consuming legal proceedings against third parties who infringe its rights.

Risk	Description
Reliance on sales channels such as retailers and online distribution partners	Hydralyte North America distributes a significant number of its products to end consumers through various sales channels, including bricks and mortar retailers such as Shoppers Drug Mart and Walmart and online via Amazon's Marketplace. The Company depends on continued access to its sales channels in order to connect with its customers. There can be no guarantee that the Company's relationships with key channel partners will continue, or, if they do continue, that they will operate on the same terms and, in respect of retailers, that they will purchase the same, similar or greater quantities of Hydralyte North America's products as they have historically.
No contracts with customers	Hydralyte North America generates its revenue from uncontracted customer relationships, using the Company's or the customer's standard terms and conditions and purchase orders and invoices. These supply arrangements, which are consistent with the typical terms of supply for participants in the FMCG industry, typically have no minimum volume requirements and can be varied or terminated by the customer on short notice (or no notice) and without penalty. The Company may be unable to maintain its uncontracted relationships on commercially viable terms, which could materially adversely affect its revenue and profitability.
Foreign exchange rate risk	The Company's financial statements are presented in United States dollars, and the Company and its subsidiaries must translate its assets, liabilities, revenue and expenses into United States dollars for external reporting purposes. As a result, significant changes in the value of the United States dollar during a reporting period (in particular, any material depreciation against the Australian dollar or the Canadian dollar) may unpredictably and adversely impact the Company's operating results, asset and liability balances and cash flows.
Reliance on key personnel	Hydralyte North America depends on the talent and experience of its personnel as an important asset. There may be a negative impact on Hydralyte North America if any of its key personnel leave. It may be difficult to replace them, or to do so in a timely manner or at comparable expense. Additionally, any key personnel of the Company who leave to work for a competitor may adversely impact the Company. Hydralyte North America's ability to attract and retain personnel will have a direct impact on its ability to deliver its project commitments. Additionally, increases in recruitment, wages and contractor costs may adversely impact upon the financial performance of the Company.
IT systems risks	In addition to the sale of products via its sales channels, Hydralyte North America operates its own websites for direct purchases from and distribution to customers. Accordingly, the Company's websites, databases, IT, warehouse systems and management systems, and those of its key online sales channels and suppliers, are critically important to its success in attracting and retaining customers and maximising sales conversions from those customers. Hydralyte North America relies on its disaster planning contingencies, and those of its suppliers and sales channels, in order to deal with events such as earthquakes, floods, fires, power grid issues, telecommunication and network failures, terrorist attacks, computer viruses, electronic theft, physical terminal theft, employee language programming errors, operating system failures, third party provider failures and similar disruptions which could result in loss or damage to data and other similar events. Any disruption, if sustained or regular, could lead to a disruption in business operations, which may have an adverse financial impact. In particular, Hydralyte North America collects, processes and stores, through the ordinary course of its business, a wide range of customer data. Despite Hydralyte North America's best efforts to ensure the safe collection, storage and protection of customer data, there is a risk that a data breach may occur, or a third party may gain access to the confidential information of Hydralyte North America's customers or its internal systems. This could result in a breach of law by Hydralyte North America, or a breach of customer agreements, and may attract significant media attention and damage the Company's reputation and brand.

Risk	Description
Brand or reputation damage	Hydralyte North America's business is dependent on its reputation with customers and consumers, and its 'Hydralyte' branding is of significant value to the business. The reputation and value associated with 'Hydralyte' branding and related intellectual property could be adversely affected by a number of factors, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • quality issues with Hydralyte North America's products; • failure or delay in supplying products; • disputes or litigation with third parties, employees, suppliers or customers; or • adverse media coverage (including social media) or publicity about Hydralyte North America's products or processes. A material adverse impact to the reputation of Hydralyte North America or its brands could negatively affect public perception of Hydralyte North America, demand for its products, customer loyalty and reputation. This could have a material adverse impact on Hydralyte North America's financial and operating performance and future prospects.
Product liability and recalls	As a retailer of products designed for human consumption, Hydralyte North America could be subject to product liability claims if the use of its products is alleged to have resulted in injury. Hydralyte North America engages highly reputable manufacturers with quality control policies, and takes all reasonable precautions to ensure that its products are free from contamination or defects. However, events outside of Hydralyte North America's control could occur. In the event that contamination, mislabelling, misbranding or another such quality control issue occurs in respect of a Hydralyte North America product, this may lead to business interruption, product recalls or liabilities to customers.
Failure to effectively manage inventory	Hydralyte North America may fail to accurately forecast or manage its inventory levels, including if the Company's inventory management system fails or provides inaccurate information. This may result in the Company incurring additional costs and losing revenue. If Hydralyte North America manufactures excess product that it cannot sell in a timely manner, the excess product may need to be sold at a discount, otherwise the excess product may become obsolete and Hydralyte North America may be required to bear the costs of the surplus product and recognise inventory write-down costs. Alternatively, Hydralyte North America may experience disproportionate demand and supply for specific products, or 'out of stock' issues. This may result in lost sales, less than forecast margins and damage to the Company's reputation or brand, which may have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial and operational performance.
Changes in consumer trends and preferences	Hydralyte North America's business is primarily focused on the sale of a range of liquid, tablet, powder and effervescent healthy hydration products, in the Healthy Hydration Solutions Market. This market is subject to continually evolving consumer trends, demands and preferences, including shifts in the beliefs, tastes and dietary habits of end consumers. If Hydralyte North America misjudges or fails to predict consumer preferences or fails to convert market trends into appealing product offerings on a timely basis, this may result in lower revenue and margins and could adversely impact Hydralyte North America's future financial performance.
Failure to execute growth plans	There is a risk that Hydralyte North America may be unable to manage its future growth successfully. The ability to hire and retain skilled personnel as outlined above may be a significant obstacle to growth.
No track record of profitability	Hydralyte North America does not have a track record of profit and there is no guarantee that it will ever be profitable. If it does not achieve profitability it will be unable to pay dividends in the future and capital growth may be less likely.
Additional capital requirements	The Company's capital requirements depend on numerous factors. Depending on the Company's ability to generate income from its operations, the Company may require further financing in addition to amounts raised under the Capital Raising. Any additional equity financing will dilute shareholdings, and debt financing, if available, may involve restrictions on financing and operating activities. If the Company is unable to obtain additional financing as needed, it may be required to reduce the scope of its operations or scale back its research and development and/or clinical trials as the case may be. There is however no guarantee that the Company will be able to secure any additional funding or be able to secure funding on terms favourable to the Company.

Risk	Description
Economic conditions	Hydralyte North America's performance will depend to a certain extent on a number of macro-economic factors outside its control which may impact the spending power and habits of its customers. These factors include, among other things, economic growth, unemployment rates, consumer confidence, taxation, inflation, interest rates and the availability and cost of credit. In addition, consumer spending may be affected by a range of factors including higher levels of inflation. Any significant or prolonged decrease in consumer spending could adversely affect the demand for the Company's products.
Share price fluctuation	The Shares will trade on ASX at a price higher or lower than the Offer Price. The price at which the Shares trade will be affected by the financial performance of the Company and by external factors unrelated to the operating performance of the Company, including movements on international financial markets, the level of interest rates and exchange rates, general domestic and international economic conditions and government policies relating to taxation and other matters. There can also be no guarantee that there will be an active market in the Shares. There may be relatively few potential buyers or sellers of Shares on the ASX at any time. All of the above factors may increase the volatility of the market price of the Shares.
Changes in laws and regulations	The advertising, distribution, labelling, production, safety, sale, and transportation in North America of the Company's currently marketed products are subject to various United States and Canada regulations, state food and drug laws; state consumer protection laws; competition laws; various federal, state and local environmental protection laws; and various other federal, state, and local statutes and regulations. Changes to such laws and regulations could increase costs or reduce Hydralyte North America's net operating revenues. In addition, failure to comply with environmental, health or safety requirements and other applicable laws or regulations could result in the assessment of damages, the imposition of penalties, suspension of production, changes to equipment or processes, or a cessation of operations at the Company's manufacturers' facilities, as well as damage to Hydralyte North America's image and reputation, all of which could harm the Company's operating and financial prospects.
Tax risks	There can be no certainty that the current taxation regime in the United States, Canada, Australia or in overseas jurisdictions within which the Company plans to operate in the future will remain in force or that the current levels of corporation taxation will remain unchanged. There can be no assurance that there will be no amendment to the existing taxation laws applicable to the Company, which may have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position.
Litigation risk	There is a risk that Hydralyte North America may in future be the subject of or required to commence litigation. There is, however, no litigation, mediation, conciliation or administrative proceeding taking place, pending or threatened against the Company. If the Company was to become involved, whether as claimant or defendant, in significant litigation then liability for damages and/or legal costs could result that might have a material adverse effect on the Company's operations, financial performance and prospects.
Force Majeure	Events may occur that negatively impact the Company's financial performance, operations or the price of Shares. These events include but are not limited to acts of terrorism, an outbreak of international hostilities, fires, floods, earthquakes, labour strikes, civil wars, natural disasters, outbreaks of disease or other natural or man-made events or occurrences. Climate change will furthermore increase the likelihood of events such as floods, droughts, fires, heatwaves and cyclones. These events could impact Hydralyte North America by causing increased costs, closures, disruption to operations, lack of access, damage to warehouse or stock, impacts on supply and transportation of product, among other things. The Company has only a limited ability to insure against some of these risks.
