Today's dynamic landscape creates many challenges for hoteliers

Fragmented, complex approach to set up and manage rates, revenue and distribution

Critical to be able to respond to real-time market demands

Time-sensitive, disparate data sources that need to be stitched together for a true indication of performance

Important to attract the right guest at the right price at the right time through the right channel

Overwhelming, frustrating and hard to navigate

Most hoteliers don't leverage the full opportunity

These challenges are validated by our customers

Small Independents

Owner Operator,
UK

"Being a hotelier is very stressful. If you get just a few [of these revenue management strategies] wrong you can ruin your business or your life with debt."

Large Independents

Director of Sales,

"It is hard. Travel is such a fast-paced industry with short booking windows and everything is an emergency. It's very draining and you really have to be on top of your game at all times."

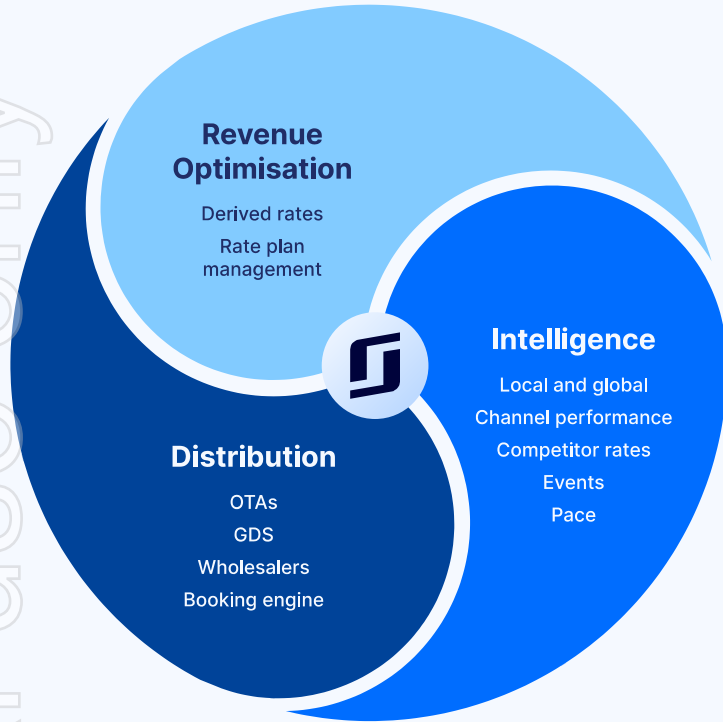

Groups and Chains

Group Revenue
Manager, South Africa

"It can take a week to get the data required for our reports. Getting the data necessary to manage revenue is very important. That's something we do all day every day."

A competitor hotel is hosting an undisclosed 'celebrity wedding'. Their entire hotel is now booked out. Guests and staff for the wedding are booking overflow rooms at properties nearby.

Hotel 1 was notified that other hotels in their market were increasing prices and availability was becoming limited. They immediately applied a price increase, closed discounted rate-plans, added fences to sell slower-moving shoulder dates and revised their booking policies.

Hotel 2 was unaware, and made no price changes and did not implement revenue management tactics around this event. They missed out on significant revenue.

Scenario 3: Regional traveller booking response

A major Indian airline has expanded its flight offerings, leading to a surge in demand for destination accommodations. A leading online travel agency (OTA) in India is capturing most of this demand.

Hotel 1 is integrated with the OTA in India. Recognising the surge in bookings, the hotel has strategically adjusted pricing across its portfolio to align with the heightened demand. They've also tailored their direct channel to Indian traveller preferences, and as a result saw a rise in both OTA and direct bookings.

Hotel 2 has overlooked this booming market. The hotel doesn't adapt their online distribution to cater for Indian travellers, and as a result loses market share to rivals.

Scenario 4: Continuous distribution optimisation

As Oktoberfest approaches, Munich sees a 24% spike in search volumes, prominently led by Australian travellers.

Hotel 1 prioritises conversion and SEO, updating their website with Oktoberfest-themed descriptions, images, blogs and packages targeting Australians. They manage consistent room descriptions across channels tailored to appeal to Australian guests, boosting SEO rankings, bookings and revenue.

Hotel 2 has an outdated website which looks different to its direct booking engine. There are no references to Oktoberfest on either. The result is low booking conversion and limited revenue despite the surge in demand traffic.

New Build

Channels Plus

Friction in distribution is a real world challenge

For properties

Adding new channels takes effort

Each partner follows a different process, with properties having to map rates and data across systems.

For distribution partners

Hard to access untapped growth and value

Achieving growth in supply in new regions is challenging (especially for young and innovative firms).

Shared challenges

Complexity and volume of commercial agreements

Every connected property and partner pairing needs its own direct agreement - requiring negotiation, management, and for a potentially unproven return.

Lack of direct connection between property and content

Many partners rely on indirect sources, which can dilute margins, introduce supply risk, and only gives the property limited control and visibility of how their listing is marketed and sold.

Replacing the challenge of today....

Distribution channels

Properties

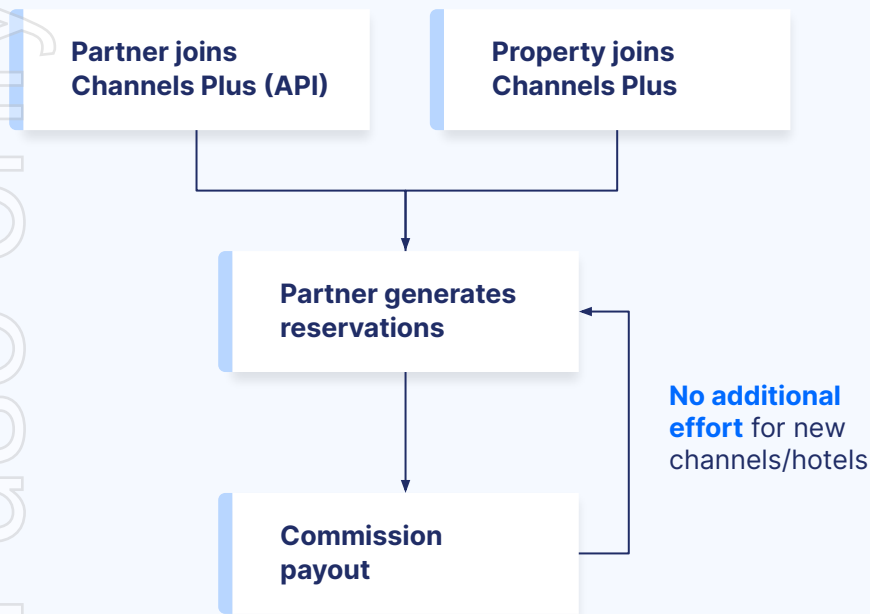

Many
connections, agreements, configurations

.... with the ease and simplicity of 'one' tomorrow

Our value proposition:

Simply reducing friction in distribution

Partners and properties automatically connected on Channels Plus as they sign up to the program.

Content changes reflected immediately in API replies, ensuring partners always have up-to-date content.

Simple, standardised commission payout for properties with each partner through the platform.

Hoteliers get more distribution.

Partners get more inventory and content.

SiteMinder will share a percentage commission per booking with the partners for providing the service.

Highlighting partner-generated campaigns

Key takeaways

Revenue management in the hotel industry is well behind other industries.

Smart Platform and Dynamic Revenue Management address adoption challenges, to provide the most comprehensive and integrated revenue solution for hotels.

SiteMinder is uniquely placed to drive this industry transformation.

Our platform today already has the largest GBV among independents with >100m bookings per year.

Smart Platform will deliver significant incremental value to hotels and distribution partners, with the opportunity for SiteMinder to share in the upside.
