WOA'S LUPIN PROTEIN INCLUDED IN TWO NEW RECENTLY LAUNCHED CONSUMER PRODUCTS

HIGHLIGHTS

- Wide Open Agriculture successfully integrates lupin protein into two recently launched consumer products; one in the Australian baked goods market and the other in the U.S.A plant-based dairy market.
- The newly launched products include CHONK cookies in Western Australia (containing Buntine Protein®) and Superitalia coffee creamer (containing the former Prolupin isolate LP90) available in the U.S.A on Amazon, demonstrating the versatility and consumer reach of lupin protein as an ingredient.

Wide Open Agriculture Limited (ASX: WOA, "Wide Open Agriculture" or the "Company") is pleased to announce the successful integration of Buntine Protein® into a 3rd party consumer product which is now available in the Australian market. This represents the first 3rd party commercial application of Buntine Protein®.

CHONK vegan cookies uses WOA's Buntine Protein® to create a gluten-free, dairy-free, egg-free and soy-free treat that is both sumptuous and sensitive to dietary needs. These cookies are available for sale in Western Australia¹ and represent a new venture into the vegan snack market. CHONK cookies is a brand from West Australian based Noshing, a leading vegan food manufacturer in Western Australia.

The second product, from Italian company Superitalia, is a premium coffee alternative that uses the former Prolupin isolate LP90 to make an Instant Superfood Cappuccino. The full range is available on Amazon in the US². This product provides unique attributes available to customers across the United States in the US$13bn³ coffee substitutes market.

"We are immensely proud to witness the debut of Buntine Protein® in the consumer market, a great result from our team's dedication and the innovative spirit of Wide Open Agriculture," said WOA CEO Matthew Skinner. "These are not just product launches; they are a great leap forward in our mission to deliver sustainable and health-focused food solutions to the global market. We are excited to see how these products will resonate with consumers and pave the way for further innovations."

The launch of these products demonstrates the functional and commercial viability of lupin protein and is consistent with the Company's proposed timeline released in its Investor Presentation of 13 March 2024. The initial volumes required for these products are not material to the Company's overall revenue, however validate the Company's commercial strategy and the functional properties of the Company's lupin protein ingredients.

This announcement has been authorized and approved in accordance with the Company's published continuous disclosure policy.
