These appointments follow the recent announcement regarding the acquisition of a 100% interest in the McLaren Valuable Heavy Mineral Sands Project located near Norseman and Esperance Port, WA.

Allup Silica Executive Director Andrew Haythorpe commented:

"We welcome the new Board members and looking forward to strengthening the team. The McLaren Project presents an excellent opportunity for Allup Silica to fulfill its plan of moving into minerals production. There has been significant, high quality previous work done, and the high value of titanium minerals means this opportunity presents a quicker and higher confidence pathway for Allup Silica and its shareholders.

As such I will be stepping aside as Managing Director but remaining as an Executive Director to support the companies' growth plans over this transformational period."
