Leadership Appointment

As part of this acquisition, Streamplay is excited to announce Ryan Holowaty as the new CEO of Noodlecake. Formerly Noodlecake's long-serving COO, Ryan has played a pivotal role in shaping the company's strategic growth and success. His experience spans key areas, including securing major publishing opportunities, cultivating strong relationships with global storefronts, and negotiating funding agreements that have enabled Noodlecake to scale organically and responsibly.

The Company is confident that Ryan's expertise and strong industry reputation uniquely position him not only to continue expanding Noodlecake's core business but to also play a pivotal role in Streamplay's broader vision of growth through future strategic acquisitions.

Ryan Holowaty, CEO of Noodlecake, commented:

"Joining Streamplay is an incredible opportunity for Noodlecake to take the next step in our journey. With Streamplay's support, we're excited to bring even more amazing indie games to players worldwide, explore ways to grow the studio, and expand into new markets. This is a chance to build on everything we've accomplished so far and push Noodlecake to the next level, reaching new players while staying true to the creative spirit that defines us."

With over a decade of leadership at Noodlecake, Ryan has been central to the studio's success, fostering high-profile partnerships and bringing acclaimed games like Super Stickman Golf, Descenders, Superliminal, and Getting Over It to millions of players. Under his guidance, the company has evolved from a mobile-only developer to a platform-agnostic publishing powerhouse, releasing titles across all major gaming platforms, including console, PC, and subscription services. His strategic foresight in both publishing and platform relationships has cemented Noodlecake as a trusted partner in the indie gaming industry. Known for his deep understanding of player engagement and monetization strategies, Ryan is poised to drive Streamplay's expansion into North American markets and support the company's vision of further acquisitions within the indie gaming sector.

Synergies

The acquisition of Noodlecake brings a range of synergies that enhance the strategic alignment between the two companies. Streamplay's existing game studio, currently focused on supporting Cloud Gaming R&D, will benefit significantly from working alongside Noodlecake's experienced team, whose established practices and market-tested insights will inform new developments. Streamplay also gains exposure to North American markets.

Likewise, Noodlecake will gain operational advantages through Streamplay's corporate and finance teams based in Australia, providing essential financial oversight and resources to support growth as Noodlecake expands its publishing reach.

Additionally, Noodlecake will work closely with Streamplay's technology R&D teams to develop tools aimed at further streamlining Noodlecake's publishing division, with the shared objective of expanding global partnerships. Noodlecake's current publishing collaboration with South African-based studio, Clockwork Acorn, highlights the potential for synergistic projects across Streamplay's global footprint, which already includes offices in Cape Town, Perth, Fiji and San Francisco, further positioning Noodlecake for efficient international expansion.

With both companies operating on compatible technology and operational platforms, the integration process will be streamlined, allowing for swift collaboration and project rollout. These synergies enable Noodlecake to leverage essential resources across Streamplay's infrastructure while reinforcing Streamplay's expansion in the direct-to-consumer gaming space.

Bert Mondello, Chairman of Streamplay Studio, commented:

"We're thrilled to officially welcome Noodlecake to the Streamplay family. This marks a significant step forward for our strategy as we enter 2025 with a strong lineup of releases and a shared vision for growth.
