- Sacre Bleu launches globally tomorrow, 17 April 2025 at 9:00 AM (Pacific Time).
- Represents Streamplay’s first global launch of a title on both the Switch and Steam platforms.
- Priced at USD $14.99 (~AUD $24.00) with a 15% launch discount available for the first two weeks.
- Anticipated compatibility with Nintendo’s upcoming next-generation Switch system when available.

About Sacre Bleu

Available on Nintendo Switch¹ and PC via Steam² – this marks Sacre Bleu's worldwide release. The game is priced at USD $14.99 (~AUD $24.00), with a 15% launch discount available for the first two weeks to support storefront visibility and drive early sales and momentum.

As part of the Company's strategic focus on platform diversity, this unique third-party title marks the Streamplay Group's first launch on both Steam and Nintendo Switch, expanding its publishing footprint across non-mobile storefronts.

Blending stylised 3D visuals with precise, physics-based combat and speedrunning mechanics, Sacre Bleu offers a uniquely engaging experience set in 17th century France. Developed over nearly nine years by Hildring Studio, the title is being brought to market with final-stage development and publishing support from Noodlecake. Its inventive use of bullet-time traversal, streamer tools, and high-replay potential has already attracted strong interest among players and content creators.³

It has also received early press coverage from key gaming media outlets including Gematsu, Nintendo Everything, Niche Gamer, and Steam Deck HQ, with its “Steam Deck Verified” status expanding visibility among the fast-growing handheld PC gaming segment.

The worldwide release of Sacre Bleu reflects the Company’s continued execution of its multi-platform content strategy. The title showcases Noodlecake’s ability to deliver high-quality third-party games across non-mobile storefronts and reinforces Streamplay’s position as a diversified games business operating across web, mobile, PC, and console – a strategy aimed at driving recurring revenue growth through broader platform reach and audience expansion, while supporting long-term shareholder value creation.

“ As our first title to launch on both Nintendo Switch and Steam, Sacre Bleu breaks new ground ” for the Streamplay Group and underscores our evolution into a truly cross-platform publishing house.

It also showcases the kind of high-impact, creatively driven games that define the Noodlecake catalogue. Releases like this help us deepen our relationships with global storefronts and support our focus on building long-term, scalable revenue streams from premium content.

Anticipated Next-Generation Nintendo Switch Compatibility

Nintendo recently announced the upcoming launch of its next-generation Switch system, scheduled for 5 June 2025, and confirmed that select Nintendo Switch game cards and digital downloads will be compatible with the new device.

While compatibility may vary by title, users will be able to transfer digital games and saved data when using the same Nintendo Account. Based on this guidance, the Company expects Sacre Bleu to be playable on the new system and stands ready to implement any technical updates required once Nintendo makes developer documentation available.
